MEDIA RELEASE

Developers meet in Adelaide

April 19, 2017

Recently, Commissioner Wendy Campana hosted a meeting of a group of developers, all with projects on Kangaroo Island. The meeting was held in Adelaide at the offices of the SA Tourism Commission.

The intention of this meeting was to bring together several of the developers, to discuss where each project is up to, and to explore opportunities for collaboration on marketing, infrastructure build and related matters.

The meeting covered many topics and was well received by all attending, with intentions made to maintain contact and work together during coming months.

“Many of the projects are still in final approval stages and in discussions with Government,” Wendy Campana said.

“Other projects are exploring issues like water and electricity connections and final designs.” “It was invaluable for the developers to meet each other and in coming months, more information will be released to the community on where projects are up to. My office will also be working with developers on issues such as construction timeframes and employment needs,” she said.

In attendance were (from left) Alex Cole (SATC), Marcus Hancock (MJH Group, representing the golf course development), Ken Patterson (Australian Property Projects, Aurora Ozone Hotels), Commissioner Wendy Campana, Ian Drummond (Australian Property Projects, Aurora Ozone Hotels), Caj Amadio (Emu Bay development, Dauncey Street accommodation) and Paul Mercer (American River project). Apologies were given by Angelo Kotses (Bickfords Group) and Andrew Boardman (KI Council), who were unavailable on the day.
